Foolish Repelling.
Who Drives Fat Oxen.
All Records Broken.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.]

BRITAIN threatens a combination of automobile companies "to repel the American invasion." That means General Motors, increasing shipments to all Europe, with big assembly plants.

It means also Henry Ford's "Ford Limited," $35,000,000 European company, promising to build 200,000 Ford cars a year in England alone, and right away.

GREAT BRITAIN will not find it easy to "repel" that invasion. You can't beat champions with cripples, no matter how many cripples you assemble. American manufacturers will show Britain how to use British labor and materials profitably. Britain should be grateful, instead of talking "invasion."

SCIENTISTS say the "misuse of leisure by the masses" will make necessary the creation of a special governing class that will channel the masses to work more earnestly, use their leisure more intelligently.

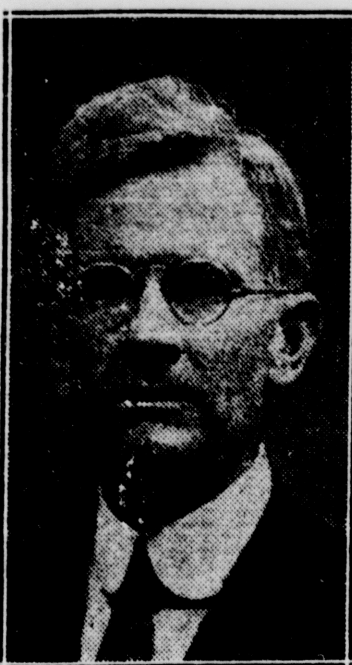

IT is a little too soon to judge the masses and their "misuse of leisure." They haven't much leisure now. Until recently they didn't have any, except on Sundays.

Those that really misuse leisure and opportunity are not the poor amusing themselves in their own way, but the rich that have power and lack intelligence or ambition to make good use of it.

DR. ELLIOTT, of New York's Ethical Culture school, says those that teach ethics to children should have "a sense of sin." The teacher, says the learned doctor, "should first convict himself of sin."

Just how convicting yourself of sin would help your pupils is not clear. (Continued on page 8, column 1)

BORAH URGES EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Any hopes that Herbert Hoover may have entertained about avoiding an extra session of congress following his inauguration went glimmering today after a steady stream of congressional leaders passed in and out of his offices, emphasizing its necessity.

First, there was Senator William E. Borah. Borah considers that an extra session was promised during the campaign, and that not to have it now would be tantamount to breaking a promise to the electorate.

DONAHEY URGES AMENDMENT OF PENCE ACT IN FINAL MESSAGE

Governor Also Warns Care in "Blue Sky" Law Changes.

HITS LOBBYISTS

Recommend Larger Personnel for Blake Bureau.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—Recommendation of the Pence act, which provides for state regulation of public utilities, and warning the lawmakers to consider carefully all proposals to amend Ohio's "Blue-Sky" laws, Governor Vic Donahey today sent his final message to the state legislature.

Donahey, also, urged the legislators to make "proper provision for a larger personnel and more suitable quarters" for the state department of industrial relations.

Enactment of legislation relieving the governor of a considerable portion of the work of disposing of applications for parole of prisoners was recommended. He favored passage of a law authorizing parole of liquor law violators from county workhouses by local authorities. Donahey requested enactment of a measure penalizing any attorney, lobbyist or other person who solicits or collects fees.

A's Highway Safety Legislation. Attention of the lawmakers should, also, be directed to the enactment of legislation insuring greater safety on the highways, Donahey declared.

Other recommendations contained in the governor's message are: Provide full maintenance for the governor's mansion; arrange for fitting participation by the state of Ohio in the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the conquest of the northwest territory, scheduled to take place next summer at Vincennes, Indiana; improve conditions at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's home, Xenia.

Governor Donahey explained he had drawn attention to these subjects "with a view to increased efficiency of the state government, the promotion of the public welfare and for the sake of facilitating the task of succeeding chief executives."

The governor informed the legislators he will submit to them soon a proposed state budget for all departments of government, a statement of the balance in the state treasury and an estimate of anticipated revenues.

"I congratulate you upon your opportunity to serve the state and hope you will cooperate harmoniously with the new executive," Donahey's message read. "During the period of your deliberations, the legislative and executive branches of government should labor shoulder to shoulder with an eye single to the high purpose of advancing in every consistent way the welfare, peace and safety of the people of Ohio."

"No public utility company should be permitted to institute the collection of an increased rate, or charge, except upon approval of the public utilities commission," said Donahey, recommending amendment of the Pence act.

Question Mark Forced To Quit Nearly Seven-day Endurance Test When Motor Goes "Cold."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Aviation enthusiasts were speculating today on just what official records would be allowed the army plane Question Mark following her epic endurance test which terminated late yesterday after more than 150 hours of continuous flying.

The giant brown and gold plane was forced to give up the monotonous grind of nearly seven days after one of her three motors went "cold" and another began to sputter. It glided to a safe landing, toching Metropolitan air field at 2:07 p. m. after being in the air 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds.

Fliers Smile Triumphantly. The crew of five men smiled triumphantly. They appeared to be in good physical condition, though tired and half dead from the roar of the motors. Although the Question Mark unofficially has wiped every endurance mark for all type of aircraft from the skies it was pointed out that the record flight of 65 hours and 25 minutes, established by two Germans without (Continued on page 6, column 3)

TEX RETURNS TO BROADWAY

Rickard's Body Arrives In New York From Florida.

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Tex Rickard returned to Broadway today.

Banked by flowers and floral offerings worth thousands of dollars the casket containing the body of the dead promoter was borne into the Pennsylvania station in the baggage car of the Florida special at exactly 10:17 a. m.

Just as had been his lot in life, Rickard found crowds in death. And, in substance, it was the same crowds that assembled around him in Jersey City, in New York, in Philadelphia, in Chicago, the scenes of his greatest promotional efforts, that sorrowfully saw his homecoming today.

Buckeye Lumber Mill Flames Ride Wind To Seven Other Places

Smith Hardware Company's Warehouse, Ervin Machine Shop and D. F. Nellis & Sons' House Destroyed, While Business and Apartment Building and Three Dwellings are Damaged.

MAYOR W. L. FOGO, WELLSVILLE, BREAKS LEG IN FALL OVER HOSE

Alfred Vandyne and Jerry Cunningham, Volunteer Firemen, are Overcome by Smoke, Chief Bryan and Oscar Powers Injured and Mrs. Etta Kennedy Falls in Heart Attack.

Five persons were injured, another collapsed in a heart attack and damage estimated at $100,000 was caused by fire, believed to have originated from an overheated stove on the second floor of the Buckeye Lumber and Building company's two-story frame mill, destroyed four buildings and damaged three other structures in the St. Clair avenue business district at 10:15 o'clock last night.

Mayor W. L. Fogo of Wellsville, Fire Chief Bryan and two other firemen, one a volunteer and the other a regular were injured, while a fourth fireman was overcome by smoke. Four of the injured were in the hospital today.

The loss includes:

Buckeye Lumber and Building company's planing mill and lumber yards, destroyed; $30,000.

Smith Hardware company's three-story warehouse destroyed and roof and third floor of a adjoining three-story brick business and apartment building owned by W. S. Smith, damaged; $47,000.

Ervin Machine company's one story frame shop, Horn Switch, damaged; $7,000.

Unoccupied two family frame house, owned by D. F. Nellis & Sons company, destroyed; $5,000.

Two-family house occupied by Benjamin F. Thomas and Mrs. Jeanette Talbot and one-family house occupied by C. E. Wilson, both owned by Mrs. O. D. Nice, damaged; $4,000.

Two-story dwelling occupied by Mrs. Ella Bradfield, opposite lumber yard, damaged; $1,000.

Household furniture in five apartments on second and third floors of the Smith building, damaged; $5,000.

Wellsville and Chester Aid.

All of the destroyed and damaged property was protected by fire insurance, owners announced.

But one building in the entire block, a double two-story frame house at St. Clair avenue and Apple alley, owned by Albert McLean, escaped damage.

East Liverpool's 26-man fire department, assisted by firemen from Chester and Wellsville, fought the flames, which threatened for a time the Standard Pottery company's plant and the "New End" shop of the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company, for three hours before controlling them.

Four go to Hospital.

Mayor Fogo, Wellsville, is believed to have sustained a fracture of his right leg when he stepped on a fire hose and fell to the ice-coated street in St. Clair avenue when the fire was at its height. He was taken to the hospital.

A short time later Fire Chief Thomas Bryan also slipped on the ice and fell to the street, cutting the back of his head. Although he protested against leaving the fire, he, too, was taken to the hospital.

Jerry Cunningham, 24, of 131 1/2 Street, a volunteer fireman, was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire and also removed to the hospital.

Fireman Oscar Powers, whose back was injured when he fell down a stairway at the lumber mill, and Alfred Vandyne, West End, a volunteer fireman, were taken to the Central fire station, nearby, where they were attended by Dr. J. W. Hayes, osteopath, and Dr. Clyde Larkins. Vandyne, who was overcome on the third floor of the Smith building, was carried to the street by Fire Chief Bryan. He, too, was taken to the hospital early this morning.

Mrs. Etta Kennedy, who occupied a third floor apartment of the Smith Hardware company building, collapsed from a heart attack after she fled from the structure. She was removed to the home of Mrs. Jennie Hamilton, Grove alley, in the Sturgis ambulance.

Two Women Discover Blaze

Two women passing the lumber yard in St. Clair avenue, discovered the blaze at 10:15 o'clock. They ran to the Central fire station about 200 feet away where they reported the blaze.

When firemen reached the scene of the blaze the fire had spread to the entire second floor of the lumber mill and was eating its way through the wall into the three-story frame warehouse of the Smith Hardware company.

Firemen were handicapped by zero temperatures in fighting the blaze. Fanned by a high wind the blaze soon enveloped the Smith warehouse and also ignited the roof of the adjoining three-story brick building in which the Smith Hardware and apartments are located. Besides Mrs. Kennedy and her daughter, Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Peterlin and Mrs. Bertie Webber occupy apartments on the third floor of the building while Mr. and Mrs. McConnell lived on the second floor.

Explosions of powder, gasoline and oils in the hardware warehouse added to the fury of the blaze.

"I know an easy way to keep from getting fat Light a Lucky instead of eating sweets."

Nazimova
Famous Stage Star

THE modern way to diet! Light a Lucky when fattening sweets tempt you. That's what thousands of lovely women are doing—successfully. The delicately toasted flavor of Luckies makes them a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. Toasting does it. Toasting removes the impurities and improves the flavor of the finest tobacco. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Men who pride themselves on keeping fit discovered this long ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition—many prominent athletes have testified to this fact. They discovered, too, that Luckies don't irritate the throat—a fact subscribed to by 20,679 physicians.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY
INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

O. S. U. Campus Style Six Months Behind!

Princeton and Yale Set Pace in Mode of Clothing for College Men, in Opinion of New York Newspaper.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—Six months behind the times!

That is the opinion of a New York newspaper in regard to the mode of clothing worn by Ohio State university men compared with the styles in the eastern schools.

"Styles that appear on the campuses at Princeton and Yale fail to become adopted at Ohio en masse until many months later," the Gotham newspaper states. A general backwardness to accept the new and reject the old styles is clearly evident at the Buckeye institution.

French Coat Sign of Backwardness.
Princeton men are given the credit in the collegiate world as style setters for college male attire but until the recent allegation by the newspaper, Ohio State men were supposed to have followed closely in the footsteps of the Princetonians and occasionally to create a new style themselves to be adopted by the collegians of the country.

A good illustration of the midwestern backwardness in the clothing line, so states the newspaper, is the trench coats which thickly dotted the campus at Ohio State this fall. This particular style of coat gained its popularity at Princeton and Yale and other eastern schools last spring the paper reports.

Adopt Narrow Brim Hats.
After they were in vogue for a long period in the east, Ohio State male students again emulated the Atlantic coast schools in adopting the narrow brim felt hats in grays, browns and greens. The narrow brims have now been popularly accepted by the Buckeye students.

While no small number of Ohio State students are still seeking the Oxford grays as the generally accepted type of suits for campus wear, easterners have already turned from the type to patterned modes. This indicates, adds the paper, that Ohio State students are slow in dropping styles as well as being slow in the adoption of new ones.

Boyhood Playmate Of Former Kaiser Is Auto Victim

ROCHESTER, Ind.—A boyhood playmate of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany died here when Paul H. Rieloff, 79, was the victim of an automobile accident.

Rieloff died from a fractured skull after being run down by an automobile.

The father of Rieloff was the hostler of Frederick III, emperor of Germany and the father of the famous refugee of Doorn. Rieloff and Kaiser Wilhelm played together when they were children and wrote to each other for many years, but had no correspondence since the outbreak of the World War. Rieloff fought for Prussia in the Franco-Prussian war.

Following recent improvements and extensions Brazil now has 47,000 miles of improved highway.

POTTERS' LOAN ASSETS TOTAL TEN MILLIONS

Elsewhere in The Review will be found the eighty-first semi-annual statement of The Potters' Savings & Loan company of this city. We recommend its careful reading to every reader, as it is the financial statement of this strong old financial company that shows assets of over ten million dollars.

It also emphasizes the fact that on January first, it paid out and credited to the savings accounts of its members, two hundred forty-three thousand and two hundred dollars and fifty-four cents. Of this amount twelve hundred seventy-five dollars and fifty-three cents was credited to the savings accounts of more than two thousand school children.

The nearly twelve thousand members of The Potters' Savings & Loan company, may well be proud of their company, and our community, as well, in the knowledge that The Potters' Savings & Loan company is considered one of the strongest savings and loan companies in the state. (Adv.)

... the public now demands

375,000

Jars of Vicks daily

Compared with 1918, this epidemic, so far, is mild; and yet, in spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks Laboratories are once more operating night and day to meet the emergency demand for more and more Vicks VapoRub. Over 375,000 jars are now being produced daily.

approved method of using Vicks for FLU

1. AS A PREVENTIVE

Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils. Also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors. This helps to ward off germ-infection.

2. IF A COLD STARTS

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot, wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

3. AFTER A FLU ATTACK

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds, attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks.

Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal. Vicks is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely, as often as needed, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

Who Will Succeed Rickard?

Who will take the place of George L. (Tex) Rickard, acknowledged king of sports promoters at the time of his death in Miami Beach, Fla., as a result of a gangrenous infection which followed an operation for appendicitis?

This is the question in the minds of millions of admirers of the one-time cow-puncher, gambler and prospector and soldier of fortune, as the body of the man who promoted the "ring battles of the century" arrives in New York after a journey from the Southland.

Col. John S. Hammond, hitherto assistant to the promoter, was last night named as acting general manager, but the directors made it clear that no action has been taken or discussed as to permanently filling Rickard's place and general manager.

Many names have been suggested, but most predictions list Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and to Rickard's mind the greatest fighter ever to draw on gloves. Whether Dempsey, who termed the man who made the professional prizefight an adventure in high finance, "The best pal I ever had," would accept the place is problematical, for the responsibilities involved in the presidency of a $5,000,000 corporation are more than the average man would care to assume. And that is the amount of money behind the new Madison Square Garden which Rickard and a group of Wall Street millionaires made possible.

Rickard was a believer in the Salvation Army slogan. "A man may be down but he is never out." He proved that he did not know meaning of the word, "quitter," when he cut wood at $15 a cord for five months to make a living after losing $60,000 in Alaska in his early career. But he staged a comeback and made possible million dollar purses in the prize ring.

Few men will be harder to replace in their chosen line of endeavor.

Shipping War On

From London comes the explanation of the action of the Cunard people in putting their trans-Atlantic liner, Caronia, into winter service between New York and Havana, a service which has heretofore been considered American.

The British are said to resent the manner in which American capital has bought up their stock shares and purchased and carried away their treasures. Britain realizes, it is explained, that she is losing her foreign markets in Latin America to the United States and beholds her own dominions favoring American products over British. She believes that America has become thoroughly determined to possess a merchant marine which may prove a menace to the supremacy of the British merchant marine, and, feeling thus, she believes the best way to meet the issue is to carry the fight for mercantile supremacy to America. Hence the putting into service of the Caronia in the New York-Havana trade.

More than this, the Cunard people threaten to sue the United States Shipping board in the event that the withdrawal of the President Roosevelt from the trans-Atlantic service and placing her in the New York-Havana service results in material loss to them as a result of the Caronia venture, holding that the Shipping board is using the Roosevelt as a "fighting" ship, which is not permissible under the shipping act of 1920.

It is pointed out that the Cunard line would have difficulty in carrying out its threat, as the government can not be sued without permission of congress and its only recourse would be to the court of claims and then with the permission of the government. But even so, the policy of the shipping board in introducing a fighting ship into the situation is decidedly questionable.

Be the result what it may, the war for the New York-Havana trade is on. The American lines have cut fares 25 per cent to keep business from the Caronia and the Roosevelt has been loaned to the Ward line and made her first sailing for Havana Saturday. To complicate the situation still further, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line, of Japan, has given notice that four of its liners will make Havana a port of call hereafter between New York and Kobe, the French line has allocated a couple of ships to the service and the Royal Spanish Mail line and the Red Star line, one each.

Lesson For Russia

They are having trouble about personal liberty in Russia. Report has it that the Soviet authorities have been forced to take a hand in the matter and administer a rebuke to certain Russian coal miners who saw fit to pile indignities upon some white-collared engineers.

A crack on the head by a handy vodka bottle seems to have precipitated matters. The bottle was wielded by a miner who demanded a raise after a few days on the job. The cracked head belonged to a widely known engineer who had referred the man's demand to the mine superintendent. The affair seems to have been the aftermath of the recent "schachtel" trial involving some 50 engineers accused of promoting sabotage. The so-called "intelligentsia" came to grief in this trial, and this affair is a belated flare-up of the inflamed state of mind against this group.

Of course those in authority know that it takes two kinds of work, head and hand, if industry is to move along. They found it necessary to put down sabotage. They now find themselves no less obliged to take measures which will convince the workers with grimy hands that the brain workers must be freed of indignities and violence.

Russia has learned some lessons since she cut loose from the czars, at least her wiser leaders have. Industry cannot get along in Russia as better than it can any place else without brains. The sooner Russian workers learn this the better off they will be.

A federal court has decided that a war veteran's widow may not collect her husband's government insurance if it is shown that she has been unfaithful to his memory and guilty of improper conduct. The decision may or may not be good law, but it's a cinch that it stands for decency.

Police Commissioner Whelan, of New York City, has ordered the police to bring in for examination all well-dressed loafers. An order like that would prove a bit embarrassing to a lot of people in almost any old town.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—Britannia has been ruling the waves for a long time but now geologists, oceanographers, and archeologists are seriously considering the probability that the waves will be ruling Britannia before so very long, historically speaking. For the British Isles actually are steadily washing away and crumbling into the sea. Usually, in cases of sea erosion, what is taken from one place on a coastline is piled up somewhere else. But no such operation is going on in Great Britain; there are no compensatory deposits. Moreover, the archeologists insist, and submit strong evidence to back up their arguments, that the process has been going on steadily for a long time.

In fact it is strongly urged that the British Isles have been entirely covered by water and that not so very long ago. There is one theory which has many supporters to the effect that the Isles have been subject to periodic inundations.

It has been definitely established that the Thames river, at London, rises sixteen feet higher at high tide than it did when the Romans occupied that city. Archeologists, excavating under London, have brought to light foundations of Roman buildings which obviously then were well above high water mark but are now full sixteen feet below normal high tide. It is highly probable that in the Fourth or Fifth Century all England excepting the mountains—which became islands—was inundated. Ancient documents attest the fact that a part of what now is London was a great swamp in the Middle Ages. Indeed, that section to this day is called Moorfields.

American readers will recall how very frequently in recent years the newspapers have been full of accounts and pictures of great floods and high tides in England. People have gone about the streets of Thames-side towns in boats and even the streets of London itself have been under water. Each year the floods and high tides seem to become greater. The Victoria embankment is a sort of dyke, built in Queen Victoria's reign, which is designed to hold back high tides in the Thames but with increasing frequency the waters overflow it. Engineers are seriously considering the possibility that before very long coastal and riverside cities of England will have to build an elaborate system of dykes to keep back the waters just as the cities of Holland have done for centuries.

Geologists point out that there are many evidences that most of England was under water not so very long ago and oceanographers incline to the opinion that the floor of the sea is rising, forcing the water over the land.

It seems highly probable that, even since the time of Christ, there have been many geographic changes in the British Isles. First, there is good reason to think that Ireland and England were once connected. The action of the sea has been carefully observed in recent decades. Where there is a beach or an earth shore line, it gradually washes away. Where rock headlands jut out, the tendency is for the sea to wash around them and what now are promontories ultimately will become islands.

Here is one clear instance of what has occurred. The earliest reference to the Isle of Man is found in the works of a Roman writer, living in Britain not long after Christ. The Isle then was 23 miles from the coast. Today it is sixty miles. Goodwin Sands today is an island 11 miles at sea. Only a thousand years ago it was a part of the mainland. Within the memory of living men small islands off the coast have utterly disappeared into the sea. Sandhurst Castle, a historic edifice on the south coast, is rapidly collapsing into the Channel.

Skene, Dunwich Port, and Alborough are three cities which flourished in feudal times—stout walled cities with many inhabitants. They are utterly gone; swallowed up by the sea. The now thriving port of Lowestoft is threatened and the town is spending large sums on sea walls. The cliffs near Veunor on the Isle of Wight not long ago all into the ocean and now even the famous white chalk cliffs of Dover are crumbling into the Channel. Lyme Regis, famous as the landing place of the Duke of Monmouth, pretender to the throne of England, may last but a few years, according to the present rate of encroachment of the sea.

Up on the east coast, the North Sea also is causing erosion although the process seems to be more rapid on the Atlantic side and in the English Channel. There are legends to the effect that Colchester, Lincoln, and even the great city of York once were inundated. Durham Cathedral threatens to fall into the river. Certainly there are quite definite stories remaining of great tidal waves in past times. Some scientists think that there will be a steady erosion and then some day one of these periodic tidal waves will sweep in inundating whole counties, the water remaining in lakes and swamps for many a year, perhaps for all time.

A special study now is being made by British experts to determine what steps may be taken to protect the coastline. Much of this study is directed to plans for the construction of vast jetties extending into the sea which would tend to deflect certain currents so that they would build up land rather than tear it away. But such works of man often "grave" land against great elemental forces of which the sea doubtless is the greatest. It is wholly conceivable that the British Isles some day will consist of an archipelago of thousands of little islets, the mountain tops of the present day.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—It used to be that just to mention Hoboken was good for a vaudeville laugh. Like so many other towns with wild Jersey names it was a peg upon which jokesters hung wheezes. Nobody it would seem journeyed there save to catch a boat.

But Hoboken suddenly became a place of importance and sophistication, and is called "the last seacoast of Bohemia." The intelligentsia began writing pieces about it in the ultra journals. New Yorkers go there in droves to be entertained. In a word, Hoboken has achieved that frazzled description, "smart."

For years it was noted as a German center where the thrifty haus frau kept her pots and pans shining and sea going husbands, aided by good beer and the tilt of the sea, paraded the sidewalks with rolling gaits. Hoboken's manner was supposed to be stodgy.

The opening of the Holland Tunnel, through which New Yorkers may motor in white-tiled elegance, played its part in the new sparkle. Other things, such as the old-time Hofbrau and German cooking also contributed to the remarkable renaissance.

The new Hoboken is proof that cultured appetites often run to pig's knuckles, red cabbage, tripe and other such low foods. Hoboken has many places where such delicacies may be washed down by frothy mugs of beer whose alcoholic contents is never a matter for debate.

There is, too, a playhouse which is presenting plays weekly by competent performers. It has none of the "arty" eagerness to save the drama such as is featured by so many obscure theatrical movements. It is merely offering intelligent plays intelligently.

Broadway producers swamped with the cussing and cocktail dramas are already beginning seriously to discuss the "Hoboken movement." And the mighty migrations have been felt by the Times Square eating belt. Among those I saw over there were Charles Hanson Towne, Christopher Morley, Frieda Hempel, Conde Nast, Arthur Hopkins and Bertin Braley.

One of the most interesting phases of New York life is the shifting of its amusement centers. Last year the appeal to sophisticates was in Harlem's Black Belt. Few seem to go there any more. And now it is Hoboken.

There comes to New York streets a strange dead calm between 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock in the evening. All but so-called fashionables are dining. On a busy block in West 42nd street last night I counted only ten persons. That's one of the sillies, come to think of it, walking around town—counting people, with all there is to do.

Another Joe Miller—Jos. B. Miller—is shortly to publish a "Joe Miller Joke Book." He has a genealogical connection with the original Joe Miller, who was an actor born in 1665 in England and died in 1739.

Simile: "As useless as the extra handle on a bouillon cup."

An eight-cylinder executive who has been hitting on all eight for some time, found his nerves acting up. He became irritable, sleepless and lacking pep. One evening he came home in particularly low spirits. His wife, a little worn with him, too, suggested he sit down and have an old-fashioned cry. He immediately burst into a torrent of tears and they had to call two doctors to stop him. But he has been his old self since.

The Cornelius Vanderbilt home on Fifth avenue is usually dark and curtained. The other evening it was all lit up like a Christmas tree.

"What's going on?" some asked a corner cop.

"Nothing," he replied. "I suppose the folks just came home for an evening."

Theatrical production costs are reaching a new high—as we say "in the street." A hand knitted gold vest worn by a portrayal of King Louis for only three minutes cost $7,245. And if it didn't sound so much like one of those absurd free puffs we would chronicle the producer's name. But we did see it. Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Nature planned the chest so that the heart and lungs might be protected against accident. Placed deep in this cavity and remote from the outside world, these vital organs are rarely involved in disease and then only by extension from fairly remote parts of the anatomy.

The lungs are suspended within a space surrounded by chest-bone, ribs and back-bone. They are covered by a closely fitting tissue, called the "pleura."

This same material lines the inside of the cavity. Between this and the pleura-covered lungs is an empty space.

Just enough moisture is provided to permit the lungs, when they are filled with air, to slide over the chest walls without friction. It is an admirable arrangement, allowing deep breathing without consciousness of the inflated cells.

Unfortunately, we are so situated that we cannot escape upsets in Nature's wise plans. Among other ailments we are liable to have is an inflammation of this delicate membrane. Then there is trouble.

The slippery membrane becomes sticky. One membrane, instead of sliding over the other as it should, may become attached to it. Some part of the tissue covering the lungs becomes adherent to the lining of the ribs.

The disease which causes this disturbance in the normal action of the lungs is called "pleurisy." The form I have described is sometimes called "dry pleurisy."

But it rarely stops here. In all probability the disease will progress. Then there is a marked increase in the quantity of fluid in the chest. The doctors speak of this accumulation of fluid as an "effusion." This may be so great as to crowd the lungs, actually compressing them so they cannot be filled with air.

In one form this effusion consists of a straw-colored fluid. In another form the pleural cavity is filled with pus. Then we have "empyema."

You can well believe that a large accumulation of pus within the chest is a serious matter. There is danger of general blood-poisoning, with rupture of the lung or chest wall.

Pleurisy comes on with chill, fever, cough and pain in the chest. The pain is very severe. It is a cutting, stabbing, sharp, most distressing pain. Every breath taken increases the agony. The fever runs to 101 or 102 degrees, or more. It continues for a week or ten days. Difficult breathing and hard, dry cough are always present.

In a favorable case the fluid is gradually absorbed. The fever declines and after five or six weeks recovery is quite complete.

Rest in bed, strapping the chest with broad strips of adhesive plaster to lessen the movement in breathing, and the giving of appropriate medicines, will hasten recovery. If the effusion is extensive, it may be necessary to puncture the chest wall to drain away the fluid.

This is the simple story of a most uncomfortable but, fortunately, not particularly serious disease. It is necessary in every case, however, to guard the health for some time after recovery from the acute symptoms.

A Big City's Divorce Problem. Chicago has offered the nation an other illuminating set of statistics. Its divorce granted increased by more than 400 over the previous year, with a total of 2,621. Of this total 7,300 were obtained by wives. The most tragic phase of these broken life romances was that 5,664 children were left homeless, to be adopted into private homes or placed in public institutions. Eighty-five per cent of the divorced couples were childless.

This report is not a flattering tribute to the effect with which Chicago's many a licentious and welfare agencies perform their work. Their influence toward tranquil and happy home conditions are expressed largely in good counsel and slogans. These are feeble instruments when opposed to the effect of economic conditions, the craving for amusement, the hasty courtships and subsequent lack of interest or preparation for the responsibilities of homemaking which were at the base of most of the divorces.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

By J. J. Mundy.

Have You One Real Friend? At times you long for a lot of friends.

You feel quite alone. You have a family, perhaps, but you are fond of variety and you think it must be wonderful to have a great many friends.

You have acquaintances, many of them, but they are not close friends. You go over the names of persons you know.

Two or three, possibly, you consider your good friends. What you want is one upon whom you can depend in any and all circumstances.

But if you have even one friend who would sacrifice for you, you are as fortunate as most people in this respect.

It is easy to make friends who will stand by and up for you, up to a certain limit, but difficult to find those who will go beyond that point.

It may be that you expect and desire a measure of friendship that you are not willing to match, point by point, when it comes to the proof.

Then you are selfish and unreasonably.

Good friends—real friends—are few and far between, but they are worth having for when your soul is lonely.

Don't be deceived by words, or give words for deeds—deeds count.

Does his mother realize?

Considerate mothers will act at once.

Constipation will blunt the keenest intellect, and many a child is classed as "dull" through bowels failing to act regularly. They need mother's watchful care. If your child is listless, dull and out-of-sorts, it means that the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Just give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and soon all the sour bile and irritating poison are moved from the bowels, and the child is bright and energetic again. "California Fig Syrup" cleans and regulates the bowels, and insures pure blood, clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and promotes sturdy growth. To be sure that the Fig Syrup you buy is the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package.

THE FIRE INSURANCE AGENT

—A Useful Factor in Every Community

In no other business does agent mean so much as in the fire insurance business as transacted by the Stock Companies.

More than a century ago these companies established relations with property owners through responsible local representatives.

The system has grown with the insurance needs of the country. Today hundreds of the best citizens of every state are in contact with the public as representatives of the Stock Companies.

In no other field is the agent entrusted with greater authority.

The Stock Fire Insurance agent has at his command all the facilities of the companies in engineering and research to make life and property safer. He has access to systematic hazard measurements; authentic information about proper building construction; the work of Underwriters' Laboratories in testing materials and devices, and other forms of service for the benefit of the insuring public.

In every community the insurance agents are prominent in fire prevention work. They have been faithful factors in the steady reductions that have been made in the average rate charged for fire insurance during the last twenty years.

The local agent is in position to know his client and his client's property. He is prepared to study the needs of each one—brings to each the special service required—and may save you money if you will permit him to use the many available facilities and will cooperate with him in improving your risk.

SUCCESSFUL METHODS FOR COMBATTING FLU AND COLDS

Follow These Rules — Do Not Fool With a Cold — Use Tried Safe Methods

Look out for colds—even mild colds in the head and throat.

Don't let them get down into the chest and lungs.

Don't expose yourself to damp or wet weather.

Don't go out if you are feeling sick. Influenza, grippe, pneumonia or other serious colds often come from colds.

THE DANGER.

Cold, "Flu" and Pneumonia Germs multiply by the millions and attack the weak and the strong alike. Watch out for colds, they weaken your resistance. The greatest danger lies in that "simple cold." Kill that cold quickly.

It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract, upper and lower bowels regularly. Keep the kidneys well flushed and freshen and strengthen the blood.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—Election of Myers Y. Cooper, as governor of Ohio, and other constitutional state officers at the November election was officially announced here today by Lieut. Gov. George C. Braden, at a joint session of the senate and house.

Presiding over a joint meeting of the legislators in the house chamber, starting at 1 p. m., Braden, in compliance with statutory requirements, canvassed the November election returns from the 88 counties of the Buckeye state and officially announced the election of Cooper for governor; John T. Brown, Champaign county, for lieutenant governor; Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, for attorney general, and the re-election of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, Blanche, State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy, Columbus, and State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, Dayton.

All these officers are to receive the oath of office next Monday and enter upon their new terms at that time. With the exception of Tracy, all were elected to two-year terms. Tracy will enter upon his third four-year term.

Preliminary to the joint session, the senate and house held separate sessions, the senators convening at 10 a. m. and the house members meeting a half-hour later.

Abelard was a good teacher, but otherwise imperfect.

More important than a sense of sin is knowledge of evolution, including the fact that children, if normal, all pass through a state of savagery, even of animality.

EMOTIONS appear in human babies, in the same order as in the animal ranks, first fear, then anger, then jealousy. The Apache's cruelty is born in them, and the Arab's piffling. Whoever expects children to be angels forgets his own childhood.

DR. JOHNSON did not like the saying, "Who rules over freemen must himself be free." He said, "You might as well say, 'Who drives fat oxen, must himself be fat.'"

A teacher needs knowledge, and common sense kindness.

WHEN this was written yesterday evening, the Army monoplane, Question Mark, had reached 146 hours of continuous flight, surpassing by many hours all records for all kinds of machines, lighter than air included.

THAT is an honor to our Army, our airplane and engine manufacturers, and it is important to future flying for various reasons.

One difficulty in ocean flight has been the great weight of enough gasoline to make the distance.

All remember the difficulty that ocean flyers have had getting off the ground.

Lindbergh shortly after his return told this writer, "The sensible route to Europe is via the Azores, with a stop there to take on fuel, starting out with a lighter load."

QUESTION MARK proves that no stop is necessary. One, or several planes could fly up from the Azores, taking fuel to a trans-Atlantic flier.

Mid-ocean stations might answer the same purpose.

AIR MAIL will be able to go straight through from coast to coast, refueling in full flight, and passengers should soon make the ocean-to-ocean trip inside of 24 hours. Eventually, more powerful fuel and less weight, or wireless power, will solve the problem.

WHEN iron boats, run by steam, were first suggested for trans-Atlantic work, serious engineers said that even if they could cross the ocean, they could not possibly carry enough coal for the trip.

RECENTLY Messrs. Ramsay and O'Banion printed their Tipton Daily Tribune on excellent newspaper made from cornstark. The Tipton Tribune is first in Indiana and second in the world to use the cornstark paper. The Commercial News, of Danville, Ill., used it first.

These newspapers are to be congratulated on their enterprise, that may render great service to bigger SLOW-ER newspapers, and to farmers.

LEARN from science that the value of a 150-pound man "on the hoof" as farmers say, assuming that decency would prevent using the fat on the side, is about 98 cents. His body contains enough lime to wash a small chicken coop, a little sugar, enough iron to make a ten-penny nail.

Nearly all the 90 odd elements are in man, but in small quantities.

SOMEBODY thinks he discovered Stradivarius' art of making violins, revealed in a letter written by Stradivarius to a priest in Cremona.

You might find a letter from Philias describing his method of making statues, but that wouldn't create a Venus of Milo. The Stradivarius letter won't produce Stradivarius violins, unfortunately.

IN 1928, New York city spent for building $65,000,000 more than 1927.

HEAR LENGEL APPEAL JAN. 29

Three Judges Will Sit In Canton Chief Fight.

CANTON, O., Jan. 8.—Saranus A. Lengel's appeal for reinstatement as police chief here will be considered in court again, Jan. 29, it was announced today.

Lengel was removed from office and convicted of complicity in the Don Mellett murder. The conviction was reversed after the former chief had started serving a life term in the Ohio penitentiary.

His plea for reinstatement was granted by Judge William P. Stephenson, of Adams county, and a journal entry of his decision was received by mail yesterday.

Counsel for the city, fighting Lengel's plea, immediately carried the case to the court of appeals at Mansfield. The appellate court ordered a stay of execution on the reinstatement and announced that a visiting court of three judges would sit here Jan. 29 to hear the case on its merits.

Lengel has announced that if reinstated he will occupy office for only a few minutes in order to claim several thousand dollars in back salary and a pension.

NO BULLETIN TODAY ON KING

British Monarch's Condition Reported Unchanged.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—No official bulletin on the condition of King George was to be issued today until tonight. A Buckingham palace official informed International News Service at 7:30 o'clock this morning, however, that his majesty's condition was unchanged. Everything was quiet at the palace during the night.

The royal physician's decision to issue only one bulletin today was regarded as indicating their confidence that his majesty would continue to improve. It is believed they will continue to issue only one bulletin a day in the future unless there is a relapse.

Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles, her husband, will leave for Goldsborough hall, their home at York, today. They had been staying at Buckingham Palace since the king's illness took a critical turn.

$150,000 FIRE IN PORTSMOUTH

Overheated Furnace Causes Destruction of School.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 8.—With a loss of $150,000, the Union street school was destroyed by fire early today. An overheated furnace is supposed to have caused the blaze. The school building was an historic one, having been erected 30 years ago.

Due to frozen fire plugs, the flames had gained considerable headway before water could be directed at them. More than 600 school children will be compelled to attend classes elsewhere as a result of the fire.

Hit-Skip Driver Kills Ohioan. TOLEDO, O., Jan. 8.—Police are searching for a hit-skip driver who, today, ran down and killed Al Hoffman, 40, employee of the Lucas county tax commission.

refueling, probably would stand unpaired in the official records. Soars 10,550 Miles.

The Question Mark remained aloft more than twice as long, but did so by refueling in the air. The former refueling record of 60 hours and seven minutes, held by two Belgians, of course yielded to the sensational feat of the army plane.

The Question Mark rolled up the stupendous estimated total of 10,550 miles in her famous six-and-a-half-day cruise. Only part of this mileage, however, will be taken into official consideration, since the great army plane was forced to fly in circles for long periods instead of traveling from point to point in straight flights.

$1,000 REWARD IN OSER DEATHS

Price on Head of Slayer Of Canal Futon Couple.

CANTON, O., Jan. 8.—The Stark county commissioners today offered a reward of $1,000 for capture of the slayer of Mr. and Mrs. John Oser, of Canal Fulton.

CANTON, O., Jan. 8.—Eastern Ohio and Pennsylvania were being scoured today in the search for the murderers of John Oser, 30, Canal Fulton dairyman, and his pretty wife, Bertha, 26. Two former employees at the Oser farm were being sought.

One, a youth of 21, known only as "Eddie," was employed by Oser, Jan. 2. When the dual crime was brought to light, he and the Oser automobile were missing.

The other, a boy of 16, had been discharged recently by Oser. He worked as a railroad section hand for a few days following, drew his pay Saturday and has not been seen since.

Sheriff Ed Gibson of Stark county returned today after a hurried trip to a Pennsylvania town said to be "Eddie's" home. His search was unsuccessful.

Oser was shot with his own .32 caliber rifle and his wife was beaten to death. Their bodies were discovered by their son, Harold, 7, who notified neighbors. Funeral services for the slain couple will be held at Canal Fulton tomorrow.

the first correspondents in the field; in fact, he was the first English-speaking prisoner of war, when, back in 1914, he, with Irvin Cobb and John T. McCutcheon, was held by the German army for a time.

His memorable story of Ypres was read the world over, and because he told the truth about this epoch of the war, he was literally blacklisted by the English and French armies. Lloyd George wiped out the journalistic "blacklist" and warmly complimented Irwin on his story.

Following the war Irwin was under fire in the Ruhr rebellion and later visited Russia and other countries, making a study of social, political and industrial conditions. His new book "The Next War," upon which he will speak here, created a sensation. He is also the author of a dozen or more other books.

Irwin is a member of the Dutch Treat club of New York; the Players Club of New York; the Bohemian club of San Francisco and was a member of the executive committee of the Authors' League of America from 1913 to 1914. His home address is New York city.

HUNTING FEVER GRIPS COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The hunting fever has taken a firm hold on President Coolidge.

Not satisfied with his experiences in Virginia and Georgia, the president has secured a Maryland hunting license and during the next week will make several sorties in to nearby Maryland counties after quail.

His companions will be Col. Edward Starling of the secret service and Col. Osmun Latrobe, his military aide. Starling is now looking up favorable locales for the presidential shooting.

Five Hurt in Fire

Flames Leap Across Street. Firemen played hose on the fire from Apple alley and kept it from spreading to the frame machine shop of the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company, and also to the two-story title garage of the Enterprise Coal company. The Ervin Machine company building at the rear of the hardware building was destroyed after the flames spread to the warehouse.

The double frame house, owned by D. F. Nellis & Sons' company, contractors, on the north side of the lumber yard, was swept by the fire. The flames then ignited the two-story frame dwelling occupied by C. E. Wilson and later leaped to the two-story duplex. The three families occupying these two places had moved most of their household furnishings to the street before the fire reached them. The rear ends of the latter buildings and the upstairs rooms were damaged.

Windows were shattered and the paint scorched on the Mrs. Ella Bradford home across the street. A garden hose played on the Bradford house probably saved it. Three windows in the Nazarene church adjoining the Bradford home were broken by the heat.

Fire Extinguishers in Mill. H. Dan Smith, secretary of the Buckeye Lumber and Building company, today said that five automatic fire extinguishers had recently been placed in the planing mill. He declared that heat applied to these extinguishers would have set them off and held the blaze in check had it started.

W. S. Smith, owner of the three-story brick building, and the three-story frame warehouse and also a one-story building housing the Irvin Machine company is in Florida where he is spending the winter. Fire insurance men today estimated the loss of the one building and the damage to the others to be $20,000. L. W. Smith, owner of the hardware store, said his loss from fire and water would amount to $27,000.

Ervin Machinery Damaged. Machinery in the Ervin machine shop is said to have been worth about $12,000. Much of this machinery was not damaged except from water.

Firemen were still playing water on the ruins at noon today. It was announced that the lumber yard probably will be rebuilt.

A concrete mixer and other machinery, belonging to the D. F. Nellis & Sons' company, were lost in the burning of the lumber yard.

The Smith Hardware store is closed today but probably will reopen the latter part of the week, L. W. Smith said.

Cripple Injured in Mt. Vernon Fire. MT. VERNON, O., Jan. 8.—A crippled peddler was probably injured fatally, 20 persons were forced to flee to the streets in night attire, and four places of business were burned to the ground when fire of undetermined origin swept a downtown block here early today.

Oliver Fry, a peddler, jumped from a second story window when his escape was cut off by smoke and flames. He landed on his head, was knocked unconscious and likely will die.

The blaze is said to have started in the Silcott garage and spread to three adjoining buildings, destroying them. The other buildings destroyed were the A. & P. store, the Crystal restaurant and the Levison shoe store.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Both the industrial and the railroad stocks slipped off to a lower level of prices at the outset today. The downward move in the high-priced specialties which wound up Monday's session swung into action, carrying prices 1 to 5 points lower without much signs of a rally. At 3:30 Radio showed a loss of 6 points for the day and 47 from the high of the move.

CHICAGO DEATH TOLL IN COLD WAVE HITS FOUR

Relief From Zero Weather Expected Before Night.

FIREMEN BUSY

Traffic Conditions in Mid-west are Clearing.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Relief from Chicago's record cold wave will come today, according to the local forecast bureau. From an unofficial low mark of 5 degrees under zero, reached at 2 o'clock this morning, the mercury was expected to rise to above 25 above by late afternoon.

The death toll in Chicago as a direct result of the present sub zero wave reached four today when the body of an unidentified man was found in a doorway, where he had apparently sought shelter from the cold.

Police stations were besieged all through the night by unemployed and homeless men seeking refuge from the biting winds. Hundreds were given blankets and coats in the lockups while other hundreds were accommodated at Salvation Army huts and improvised refuge stations.

Firemen were kept going at high speed all night as a result of overheated stoves and furnaces setting fire to homes. The icy condition of the streets and sidewalks were a constant menace to motorists and pedestrians. Traffic accidents multiplied.

Conditions west of Chicago were reported clearing today. Trains were maintaining better schedules, although traffic conditions along the highways were reported about the same. Heavy snows which preceded the drop in temperature have lain unmelted, holding many stalled automobiles in their frigid embrace.

BINDS TELLER, STEALS $7,000

Lone Bandit Waits for Michigan Bank Vault To Open.

BLISSFIELD, Mich., Jan. 8.—Harold Moore, 26, teller of the First National bank here, surprised by a lone bandit when he opened the bank, was forced at pistol point today to sit on a high bookkeeper's bench, bending over a ledger as though at work, for 15 minutes until the time lock on the bank's vault opened.

The bandit then made his getaway with between $7,000 and $10,000 but overlooked thousands more in his haste to escape. He left Moore, bound and gagged, on the floor of a small room adjoining the cashier's cage.

It is believed the daring robber secreted himself in the bank over night.

The new commercial free port at Budapest, Hungary, cost $4,500,000, and covered 1,500 acres.

Search Detroit Banks For $1,200 Left By Alaskan Miner

DETROIT.—Probate Judge Henry B. Hulbert has appointed Fred G. Dewey, attorney, as a special administrator, to search Detroit banks for $1,200 believed to have been deposited by Albert Stockman, Alaskan miner. Stockman's three daughters, believe he lost his life in a fight with a bear in 1916.

The daughters, Agnes E. Stockman, Mrs. Elva W. Johnson and Mrs. Luo-ina M. Culbertson, all of Seattle, Wash., were told of the deposit of the money by a friend of their father who accompanied Stockman to Alaska in 1916. According to this man Stockman went hunting and failed to return.

Approximately $3,000,000 worth of toys made in Germany were given to children of this country in the past 12 months.

HARDING ROAD TO MT. EVANS READY IN 1929

Colorado State Highway
Budget Provides
$35,000.

SCENIC ROUTE

Work Will Make Rockies Available to World.

DENVER.—The Harding Memorial highway to the summit of Mount Evans, will be completed during the summer of 1929.

This fact was made certain recently when the Colorado state highway budget was adopted by the highway advisory board. The budget includes $35,000 for the project that will make accessible to the public what is known to be the highest scenic motor road in the world.

The road was named after the late President Warren G. Harding.

14,200 Feet Up.
Mt. Evans is a towering peak of 14,200 feet elevation that lifts its snowcapped head 50 miles directly west of Denver. The present road ends at Summit Lake at an elevation of 12,740 feet. The five miles of contemplated road will rise at an approximate grade of 300 feet a mile to the extreme top of the mountain. A level place will be cleared there for the parking of automobiles.

The road, although extremely scenic, will be safe, and accessible to any automobile.
The Harding Memorial highway is one of the major undertakings the state of Colorado has sponsored to make the Rocky Mountains available to the world. The new road threatens the supremacy of the famous Pikes Peak road that reaches an altitude of 14,110 feet at the extreme top of the peak. The new road up Mt. Evans also rivals the widely known Fall River road above Estes Park that leads to Fall River or Hilder Pass at 10,759 feet above sea level.

Over Loveland Pass.
Another appropriation in the 1929 budget is for $30,000 to be spent in continuation of the road over Loveland pass between Silver Plume and Dillon. The money, it was said, is sufficient to complete the eastern approach to the pass, and finish the road two or three miles down on the Dillon or western slope. The road will be a short cut between Denver and Leadville, and other points on the western slope.

The largest appropriation on the 1929 budget is for $625,000 to be used in grading the highway between Colorado Springs, and Pueblo preparatory to

SHEEP RAISING GOES TO DOGS

HARTFORD, Conn.—Sheep raising in Connecticut, has literally gone to the dogs, according to the state department on domestic animals. Ten years have seen Connecticut sheep reduced from 80,000 to 8,000, and Connecticut dogs increased from 60,000 to 100,000.

The two are intimately connected, the experts on domestic animals here say, and airdales and police dogs are most responsible for the decrease in sheep in a region called ideal for sheep raising.

a later paving of the road. The pavement, it is believed, will be completed by July 1930. This will finish a strip of pavement from Fort Collins through Denver and to Pueblo, or a distance of 200 miles. It will link all the major centers of population in the state.

Workmen Excavating For Foundations Dig Up 98 Ancient Urns

MUNICH.—Workmen excavating for the foundations for new houses near Maisach, westward from Munich, have unearthed 98 burial urns dating from the Hallstatt period, around 1000 B. C. Among the urns bronze bracelets, necklaces, needles, knives and other implements were found.

$300,000 Fund Raised By Baptists for Loss In Carnes' Shortage

ATLANTA, Ga.—The Southern Baptist Home Mission board will content itself for the present with the $300,000 or more raised recently when a South-wide effort was made to wipe out the $1,000,000 shortage attributed to Clinton S. Carnes, its absconding treasurer.

Officials declared today that the amount raised would be enough to take care of the pressing obligations and pay the expenses of home mission work for some time. Carnes, who is being held in the county jail, will face trial soon. He is held on a score of indictments alleging embezzlement.

Civil War Saddle Placed in Museum At Denver, Col.

DENVER.—An old military saddle that was ridden through the Civil War battle fields by General James W. Denver, for whom the city of Denver was named, has been presented to the Colorado State Museum.

James W. Denver was Governor of Kansas Territory, when the mining village, that has since grown to the city of Denver was founded. The saddle, brass bound and worn with age and many days of hard use, will stand in a glass case in memory of the sturdy pioneer. It was presented to the state institution by Mrs. Katherine Denver-Williams, of Wilmington, O., daughter of the general.

Better Get Rid of That Tough Hang on Cough at Once—It's Dangerous Company

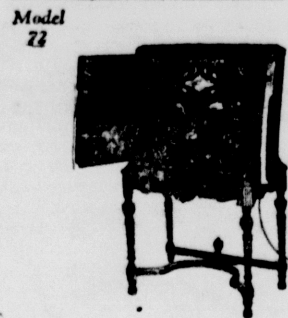

It takes more than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixtures to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Broncholine Emulsion.

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it. There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Broncholine Emulsion; it's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet one half bottle of Broncholine Emulsion did stop it—completely. Ask Carnahan's Drug Co., or any good dealer for a bottle—often three or four doses will stop an ordinary cough.

"Dempsey Is Coming Back"—Rickard's Last Message To Public

But Death Mars Effect Of Master Promoter's Final Boxing Triumph

He Was Going to Make a Pageant of This Great Event—Dempsey's Return to Ring; Can Former Champ Fail His Promise?

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The ghostly voice of the dead spoke today and, even while all that was mortal of Tex Rickard was being transported to New York for burial, the promoter was giving, by pre-arranged announcement, his valedictory to boxing and to the world. Stripped of all superfluities, his last message to the public was this:

"Jack Dempsey is coming back!"

With a relish that seems almost pathetic now, Rickard prepared his announcement of Dempsey's return for the February issue of "The Ring" and arranged for the distribution of these tidings over a country-wide area ten days in advance of their release, which originally was scheduled for Friday. He was as pleased as a child with a new toy as he made a few revisions in the proofs of the story less than an hour before he was entrained for the holiday that culminated in illness and then death.

He was going to make a pageant of this great event, this promise of his friend and idol to fight again that the heavyweight championship might again become a thing of real significance. He would run a special train, tentatively set for January 27. He would make a fiesta of the ceremony to show that he, of all the men in the world, had this day attained a triumph. A triumph that would abide through the years. Dempsey was going to fight again!

LOYALTY PROMPTED JACK'S RETURN

BUT will he? He certainly had every intention of so doing until that fateful hour on Sunday morning when the flame of one man's life winked, fluttered weakly and went out. Dempsey will not sign with Rickard now. For Rickard is dead and, with his passing, went one of Dempsey's motivating forces for the gesture he was to make. That force was his loyalty to the promoter.

Another force, of necessity, was money. Dempsey is only human, like the rest of us, and money is our counselor. In the words of one of Rickard's closest friends, Dempsey was "offered money that would make any man come back."

A third force was the type of man he was to meet next summer in a final bout for the heavyweight championship. That man would have qualified in two matches, one involving Sharkey and Stribling at Miami Beach on February 27, and another between Paulino and Heeneey later in the season, with the survivors of the two fights to meet in June. It is no star champion.

her secret that Dempsey feels he has a chance with any of the four mentioned. Personally, I don't see how Dempsey can fail to fight now, regardless of what he may be saying in his impulsive way. He has promised Rickard that he will fight and I think he may find that such a promise sometimes can be more binding than chains of steel.

"I want to let the readers of 'The Ring' in on a little secret. Jack Dempsey will come back this year." Can Dempsey ignore the appealing delight with which Rickard was inspired as he sat down to pen those last words on earth?

"One cannot think of Dempsey except in terms of greatness. . . He is greater than any fighter now basking in the limelight. . . He came within an ace of regaining the championship in Chicago and, although he lost the verdict, there are thousands of fight fans throughout the world who feel that Jack Dempsey is the uncrowned world's heavyweight champion."

DEMPSEY AGAINST TOURNEY WINNER

THOSE are a few excerpts from Rickard's eulogy to the man who, to him, was more than king. Here are a few more:

"The return of Dempsey will cause the public to accept the appointment of a successor to Tunney as a genuine champion. . . Dempsey will fight only once and that one battle will be for me and it will decide the holder of the crown. . . He is the former champion and, as such, he is entitled to more consideration than Sharkey, Stribling, Paulino, Heeneey, Risko and the rest of the field. . . It is my plan to send Jack Dempsey against the winner of my heavyweight elimination tournament. . . This final bout will take place either in August or September, preferably the latter, depending on how long Dempsey will require to get in trim. . . But Dempsey is coming back to fight for Tex Rickard, to give to the heavyweight class the punch it now lacks."

In the light of what has happened, the document breathes with emotion. Dempsey! Dempsey! Exultantly, the refrain pulses onward through this message, Rickard's last. It fairly shouts aloud its hero worship and glories in it.

I have said that Dempsey is only a human being, after all. He will be less than that if he reads this message from his dead friend and remains unmoved.

Fresh Scrub is Better Than Wilted Star - Zuppke's Theory

BOB ZUPPKE, football mentor, at the University of Illinois who is being dubbed the "gray fox of the gridiron"—and with good reason—has formulated a little adage which seems to be responsible for much of his success.

"A fresh scrub is better than a wilted star." That's Bob Zuppke's football adage, and if the proof of the pudding is in the eating then Zuppke has good cause to feel that he has struck on something very much worthwhile.

For the second consecutive year the team was accorded the Big Ten Conference championship at the close of last fall's campaign in the middle west.

Zuppke's team went through a hard schedule, but there were few if any times when the squad showed signs of fatigue at the close of any game. This was made possible through the substitution of fresh players when the players on the field began to show signs of tiring. The sage of Urbana did considerable substituting and as a result a legend sprang up that Illinois had unlimited man power. As a matter of fact, Zuppke started the season with a squad of 89 men, and a lot of these were forced out through injury or on account of ineffectuality. The Illinois didn't have unlimited man power, but what they had was expertly handled, and the results obtained are now history.

Zuppke, a mild spoken, stocky built fellow who speaks with a soft German accent, has been at the University of Illinois for over 25 years and he is likely to remain at Urbana as long as he cares to stay, which will probably be as long as he cares to engage actively in making football teams.

It was Zuppke, of course, who was largely responsible for developing "Red" Grange, the Galloping Ghost of the chalked field. Grange may have had unlimited ability when he reached the Illinois campus but Zuppke helped him into a place where he made a record on the gridiron which led to his professional career and the mass of coin which he garnered. Since the days of Grange there have been few, if any, outstanding stars at the University of Illinois. They may have their heroes at Urbana but there is a scarcity of stars.

Captain Nowak, the captain of the '28 squad, and Fritz Humbert, the fullback, were both football heroes at Illinois last fall. They may have been stars outside Urbana but at home they were merely heroes. The rumor seems to be that Zuppke made his last stand as a developer of national football stars when he turned out Red Grange. He did an excellent job in that case. Bob will tell you that you couldn't get the team from being a star, but still some credit for the stardom of Grange must go to Zuppke.

Getting back to the subject of subs, Zuppke doesn't like to give people the impression that he makes a fetish of substitutions. He'll stick to his regular team as long as they are fit, but the moment they show signs of weakening, in goes a sub. And when it comes to manpower, it must be admitted that Illinois has a big registration to draw upon, but there are not so many finished football players among the students. Zuppke makes players out of the material selected, and while he may develop a good team every year, he will tell you that he has no stars. He has some good players and some who are just ordinary. He is willing to take chances often with the ordinary ones when other coaches would pin their faith on their regulars even when they are tiring rapidly.

When it comes to stars, Zuppke is probably the biggest football star at Urbana. And he'll remain a star as long as he is in the game.

HE WAS COMING BACK FOR RICKARD

If he's in this mood, and if he does come back, Dempsey will make it hot for someone—Paulino, Sharkey, Stribling and the rest of the pack.

Dempsey was coming back, for Tex Rickard, in one last fight, to meet the winner of the promoter's heavyweight tournament. That fight was going to be staged just as soon as possible—as soon as the Manassas Man Hauler could get in the condition he sought before crawling between the ropes again.

Now, the burning question in fight circles is—Will Dempsey keep his promise to Rickard, even though the promoter is dead, and come back to fight?

The lines were being laid for his reappearance in the ring in a bout that was to provide another big triumph for Rickard. Whether Dempsey will go on with the plans under the direction of some other person is a question that only Dempsey can answer.

Promoter Had Planned to Use Dempsey to Top Off Tourney

Prepared Announcement, Prior to His Illness, Telling Boxing World of His Coupe.

(Editor's note—Below is printed the story, prepared in advance, that was to contain Rickard's surprise announcement to the boxing public. It was written before the promoter's death, to be held for release.)

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, January 8.—Jack Dempsey, probably the greatest fighter boxing ever has known, is to return to the ring!

Tex Rickard made this announcement formally today in releasing his annual rankings of boxers in the February issue of "The Ring," a publication devoted to the activities of boxers and boxing. Rickard did not qualify his statement in any way, the announcement flatly declaring that Dempsey would be back in the ring for one fight against the survivor of the elimination tournament in August or September and that the winner of this fight would be awarded the heavyweight championship of the world. The title is homeless at the moment through the retirement of Gene Tunney.

One Last Fling.

So the Man Mauled definitely is coming back! Yes, the old Tiger Man will be in there again for one last fling. The Man-Eater of the ring—but hold. Enough. Jack Dempsey has more titles than an attic at the Court of St. James but I have kept his best until the last: Jack Dempsey, the man. It is the proudest and most appropriate of them all, for Dempsey is a man, indeed, every inch and every pound of him.

Even his detractors—and the many who once existed have become decreasingly few through the years—grant him that much. As for his admirers, this legion has placed him upon a pedestal so high that even a defeat in his final appearance this summer cannot or will not lower his prestige to the strata of ordinary achievement. For this is the Jack Dempsey who at the giant Willard slithers at Toledo to win the title in 1919; the Dempsey who beat Carpenter and Firpo in a pair of thrillers and only lost to Tunney in 1926 because inactivity had claimed his toll.

It is the same Dempsey, whose sensational come back in 1927 had Tunney on the floor for Dave Barry's famous "long count" in the seventh round, a circumstance that convinced many that Dempsey really had won by a knockout. And, lastly, it is the Dempsey who drew nine million dollars worth of witnesses through "Rickard's turnstiles" through eight years of fighting.

Drawing Card.

He is the only man, in brief, who can hope to produce another million dollar rate for the promoter, with chances favoring a much greater sum because of the glamor surrounding Dempsey's return, after a year in "retirement."

However, permit Mister Rickard to tell you about it in a few of his choice paragraphs, appearing under his signature in the current issue of "The Ring."

"I want to let the readers of 'The Ring' in on a little secret. Jack Dempsey will come back this year. The fact that he has been determined to re-enter the ring in an attempt to regain the crown he lost to Gene Tunney and that he still is a great fighter, makes it necessary for me to give him a rating in my 1928 selections despite his idleness."

"One cannot think of Dempsey except in terms of greatness and the force in his case, his inactivity last year must be disregarded in the rating of the world's leading heavyweights for he is greater than any fighter now basking in the limelight and striving for the title left vacant by Gene Tunney."

the uncrowned world's heavyweight champion.

"The return of Dempsey will cause the public to accept the appointment of a successor to Tunney as a genuine champion. The fellow who can whip Jack Dempsey will earn the recognition of the public as the champion. He will win their confidence, and after all, public opinion is what will count most in deciding Tunney's successor."

"Dempsey will fight only once and that one battle will be for me and it will decide the holder of the crown. In other words, he will be one of the two finalists, the other to be selected by me from among the other contenders. He is the former champion, and as such, he is entitled to more consideration than Sharkey, Stribling, Paulino, Heeneey, Risko and the rest of the field."

"It is my plan to send Jack Dempsey against the winner of my heavyweight elimination tournament, the first bout of which is to take place at Miami on February 27. This final bout will take place either in August or September, preferably the latter, all depending on how long Dempsey will require to get into trim."

"But, Dempsey is coming back to fight for Tex Rickard—to give to the heavyweight class the punch it now lacks, to reinject a lot of the old interest and Dempsey color into the situation. The public wants Dempsey to return and he will heed public clamor as did Jim Jeffries."

In ranking his boxers for 1928, Rickard names the current champion in each of the major classes, except the current flyweight, bantamweight and heavyweight divisions. In the latter, he names the retired Tunney and Dempsey himself for the "one-two" positions, explaining that Dempsey must be ranked for 1928 because he is going to fight in 1929 or words to that effect. In the flyweight division, he dismisses the rival title claimants, Izzy Schwartz and Frankie Genaro, by ranking them below Emile Pladner, France, and Johnny Hill, England. Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, is placed at the head of the bantamweights who have no official leader.

Tunney and Dempsey occupy Class 1 exclusively. In Class 2 are Sharkey, Stribling and Paulino. In the final class are Heeneey, Maloney, Risko, Godfrey, Loughran and Phil Scott. Loughran, of course, heads the light heavyweights.

England has a new non-skid highway.

High Tilt First On New Floor

Locals Clash With Akron East Here Saturday Night.

PUBLIC auditorium sports arena, long a dream, will become an actuality, even if it's only for a season, when the new Second street court is christened Saturday night by East Liverpool and Akron East high school basketball teams.

Announcement of plans for the first scuffle of the season on the new floor was made today by O. E. Greenwalt, booking manager for the Potter City "Madison Square Garden."

"The floor and all seating and incidental arrangements will be ready for Saturday night's high school game," said Greenwalt today.

Finishing touches are being applied to the playing floor, which will measure 62 by 100 feet.

There will be seating accommodations for approximately 2,000, according to the announcement.

Six large furnaces will provide heat for the big building. There will be dressing rooms and showers for the athletes.

While plans still are a little indefinite as to the schedule of activities for the season, it is known that an independent basketball team will operate on the Second street court, as well as the high school passers. Newell high school teams, lacking a home floor, may use the auditorium, too.

If present plans mature, the independents will open their schedule next Tuesday night.

Y League Passers In Action

Stutz Defeats Peerless; Marmons Beat Cadillacs.

IN the opening games of the Y. M. C. A. basketball league last night the Stutz five defeated the Peerless quint, 29 to 22, and the Marmons ran the Cadillacs off the road, 52 to 29.

Both games were replete with action and roughness in spots. The Stutz Peerless quint played to a 4-4 standstill in the opening period but the former got away to a 16-8 lead at the half. They stayed in front, 21 to 14, at the third quarter and stemmed the rush of the opposition in the windup canto to finish in front.

Nease of the Stutz quint and Allison of the Peerless five were outstanding performers. Nease hit the cords for 17 points.

The Marmons were "on" in their game with the Cadillacs. They found the basket early and never lost sight of it.

Fifth Smith, former Western Reserve star, had quite a night of it, collecting 16 field goals and four fouls. Cooper led the Cadillacs with 14 counters while Laughlin, center, had 10.

Lisbon Weight Heaver Drills With Buckeyes

Dan Tritten Sure of Place on Ohio State Squad.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—Dan Tritten, of Lisbon, veteran shot putter, was one of the many candidates reporting to Coach Frank Castleman for Ohio State's 1928 track team, at the first tryout of the winter-school term, following the opening of the quarter, last week.

Because of his experience with the Buckeye team in previous seasons, Tritten is expected to carry the Ohio State colors in the many meets planned for the team this season. Last year the Lisbon youth was one of the best weight men in the Big Ten conference.

Four indoor track meets and possibly more have been assured the Buckeye team during the winter term. Definite assignments include the quadrangular meet February 16 at Wisconsin; a dual event with Indiana at Bloomington, March 2; the Big Ten meet at Iowa City, March 8 and 9 and the Illinois Relays March 16 at Champaign, Ill.

Reports from the training quarters reveal that Coach Castleman is grooming one of the best squads to be seen at Ohio State for several seasons.

The new air service connecting Cuba, Porto Rico, Haiti, and the Dominican republic is using American seaplanes, and will put in daily flights instead of the present three-time-a-week schedule, as soon as the passenger trade is further developed.

Thrilling story of love of two girls for the same man

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

In the dim, sputtering light of the gas jet on the stairs Mrs. Spellman and Mrs. Halliday were dark shadows with round white faces. Question marks. Viola waited at the door to her parlor, somebody's half-finished dress over her arm. They were all there waiting to hear the news. Even old Mrs. Hin Jie, wiping her hands on her apron, her head on one side, the best ear forward, listening . . .

Daphne sank into the old horsehair chair near the telephone. "Flora is married!" she said.

Mrs. Spellman recovered first. "Very sudden, I must say," she sniffed.

"Very," Mrs. Halliday echoed. Mrs. Hinckle sighed, and went back to the kitchen without a word. She was thinking of the back bedroom that would be vacant.

Viola's mild eyes brimmed with tears. She tossed her head and said angrily, trying to keep the hurt out of her voice, "Well! I notice she didn't invite us. Maybe we ain't good enough for her now she's Mrs. Webb. It's nothing to me, but I would have 'fixed her up so she'd have looked like something, at her own wedding."

I guess Flora ain't got so much to get now . . . I don't care only I'm sorry for her, that's all. She ain't going to find it so easy to bust into society with that horse-face of hers, and that common laugh. . . . It isn't as if she was the only girl that ever had a good chance.

"I guess I only just got my head turned because I could have married money! I guess I had my offers. Flora needn't think she's the only one—even Daphne here. I guess Mr. McKevitt is as good as Mr. Webb. I guess Flora ain't got so much to get 'high-toned about!'"

Mrs. Spellman and Mrs. Halliday had melted away, to discuss the news in private. Only Daphne was left, and she wasn't listening.

Axe . . . was that Webb's name? Wasn't his name Porter? And three children . . . where did they come from? The whole thing was a mixup.

She tried to think it out, but she couldn't think clearly against the steady drip, drip, drip of Viola's monologue, and the fog of her own despair.

"I'm terribly tired, Viola," she said, "and Flora will be here in the morning." So after a few minutes more Viola let her go.

Flora was as good as her word, she arrived early. Much too early for a Sunday morning. Long before Mr. Spellman and Mr. Halliday had had their Sunday baths, and their wives were out of curlers. Viola had just tiptoed out to the front steps to pick up the paper—she loved to read the funnies in bed—when she saw them coming. She recognized Flora's summer ermine coat. With a muffled squeak she fled back to her couch.

Flora snickered. "That's Miss Viola, in her nightgown. Don't let her catch you looking at her, darling, she's awfully modest!"

"Why?" Flora's new husband inquired. "Don't ask me," the bride returned. "Hadden't you better carry the baby upstairs, or does it walk without breaking its neck? Junior! Don't shove Marjorie—I mean Alice—like that!"

Flora's latchkey was in the lock, Flora's new family at her heels. "Daddy, it smells like cabbage. Do people have cabbage for breakfast?" Junior shrieked. "Shh—it's yesterday's cabbage. Also last year's, and the year before that! Oh, Axel, are all kids such a scream!"

Viola, her ear at the keyhole heard every word, and Flora's loud laugh. "You could have knocked me over with a feather," she said afterward. "When I saw that strange man and all those children, and no Mr. Webb. And her laughing, making a joke out of it—"

"Trust her to brazen it out!" That from Mrs. Spellman. "If you ask me, Porter Webb never had any serious intentions!" Mrs. Halliday decided, plump arms crossed on the shelf of her bosom.

"Well, we'll probably never know," Mrs. Spellman sighed. And they never did.

Flora got her family upstairs, and kissed them all around. Then she hauled a battered trunk into the middle of the room, and opened the closet door where her meagre wardrobe hung. "Just dump everything in there's a sweetheart—the kids can help if they want—while I go after Daphne—will you?"

Daphne was shaking hands with a tall, rather stoop-shouldered young man with shiny blue serge clothes, and a sensitive, very beautiful face, before she fully realized what had happened.

"So after ten years more or less there wasn't any point in postponing it longer," Flora was explaining. "And when I took one look at that woman who was supposed to be looking after the kids . . . I may not know much about kids, but I know more than that, weren't there six in our family?"

The three children, little steps, each a head taller than the other, looked at their new mother with stolid, curious eyes. The tall young man laughed.

"You haven't changed a bit, Flora . . . still the same harem scarum—"

"Maybe you think you've grown up!" Flora teased. Across the tumbled trunk their eyes met. They leaned toward each other, Flora with her hair in her eyes, and too much lipstick, the man in his shabby, shiny suit. The frowsy room melted away, the round-eyed children seemed to vanish . . . something tugged at Daphne's heart, her throat ached, loneliness, bitter and black, swept over her.

Only a moment before Flora turned to her again, the children were chattering, the man was whistling as he dumped shoes, hats and hairpins promiscuously into the trunk. But in that little moment Daphne knew that Flora had the only thing in the world that mattered. The man she loved.

He's the artist you told me about, the one who loved you when you were a girl, isn't he?" she asked.

And Flora answered, just as simply, "Yes, his wife ran away with somebo'y else two years ago. I wouldn't see him when I first heard he was here. I had it all fixed to marry Porter Webb you know. I was tired of being poor, and I didn't want to be Axel's second choice . . ." She spread her big, freckled hands. "But what's the use? You can't fight it. I always loved him—"

Axel Barton closed the trunk. The three little Bartons jumped on it, with whoops of joy. Flora watched them with shining eyes, and a queer, twisted smile. "And I used to hate kids . . . said I'd never have any of my own. Now I'm starting out with three . . . 'Doesn't life make fools of us?'"

"Doesn't life make fools of us?" Long after Flora and her new husband had gone away and the house had settled to its Sunday quiet, Daphne sat in Flora's dismantled room, thinking about it.

When the loneliness had become unbearable she put on her hat and went out into the sweet summer day.

CHAPTER 59.

Along the quiet Sunday streets Daphne walked, stopping to look in the shop windows, pausing to admire and notice prices—just as if she cared. There was a cross-fax in a furrier's window, prettier than the one she wanted so badly last spring. A blue dress in a sport shop . . . blue, her color, Ralph said . . . She had the money for it now, when the need for it had passed. A lot it mattered now whether she wore winter-before-last's coat, and last summer's hat.

"Thank heaven for work!" she thought, hurrying on toward the office. She could kill the long day working on Allan's papers. Maybe she could finish . . . it would please Mr. Greely . . .

Mr. Greely was having his breakfast in bed. He liked leaning back against his pillows, balancing the morning papers against his bony knees, while he sipped the good, hot coffee the old butler brought him, and ate broiled herring swimming in melted butter. And besides, it put off the unpleasant moment of meeting Sister Anne, Sunday, without the excuse of the office, was long enough at best.

On this particular morning, the morning that Daphne was on her way to the office, he enjoyed his breakfast more than usual. But he did not read the papers. Instead, he reached for his wallet, which he kept in his vest on the chair beside him, adjusting his glasses, read three letters with many chirps and clucks of secret satisfaction.

BOY CONFESSES OHIO MURDER

Admits He Killed Cleveland Filling Station Man.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—The murder of Frank McCormick, 61, filling station attendant who was shot and robbed the night of Dec. 28, had been solved today, police say, by the confession of an 18-year-old boy, giving his name as Leo Akers, formerly of St. Louis.

Akers and a companion came here several weeks ago from St. Louis, they said, after they had been taken into custody last night. Akers admitted that it was he who killed McCormick. The latter resisted as he started to rob him at the filling station, Akers said, and he shot at the attendant once but missed him. McCormick then ran to the rear of the station, and Akers pursued him, according to the confession, and shot him through the heart. He then took about $35 from the dead man's pockets, Akers said.

LEAPS 100 FEET TO HIS DEATH

Salesman Jumps From Ninth Floor in Columbus Hotel.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—The body of H. P. Hertenstein, 42, New York hosiery salesman, who jumped from a ninth floor window of the Deshler hotel here late yesterday afternoon, will be sent to New York for burial, according to funeral arrangements announced today.

Several pedestrians narrowly escaped injury and perhaps death when he crashed to the pavement from the height of 100 feet, crushing his skull and breaking nearly every bone in his body.

According to three "suicide" notes left by the man, his act was prompted by the fear of blindness. It is reported that he had been suffering from an eye disease for more than four years.

The notes left by the man were addressed to W. M. Patterson, of New York, J. E. Newberger and I. M. Steinhilber, both of New York, and the third to "the undertaker." The last note said, "In my trunk in the baggage room there is a black suit. Bury me in that."

Police found his body shoeless and coatless, with a towel wrapped about the head.

KONJOLA ENDS 8 YEAR SEARCH FOR REAL REMEDY

Stomach and Kidney Troubles Had Long Defied Every Other Medicine and Treatment Tried.

MR. PETER KANOS.

"The first and only medicine that touched my case, and I tried everything for years!" So exclaim many who find in Konjola, the new medicine, the answer to the external question of those who suffer: "What can I find to make me well again?"

Konjola is a medicine of results, success, triumphs. It conquers disease simply by going to the source of the trouble, and removing the causes. Take the case of Mr. Peter Kanos, 1732 East Thirty-fourth street, Lorain, Ohio, as one of thousands of proofs of this.

"For eight painful years I sought for something to relieve my stomach and kidney troubles. Nothing but failure resulted. Indigestion, terrible headaches, dizzy spells, kidney pains and sleepless nights were among my afflictions. Constipation was another. I was worn out and tired out, discouraged over my failures to find relief. The wonderful things I read about Konjola's achievements induced me to give this amazing medicine a trial. I took just four bottles and every last one of my troubles vanished. I eat anything I want, sleep soundly all thru the night, and my weight, strength and vitality is almost back to normal. I wish I could broadcast my experience with Konjola so that every one who suffers can hear and profit by it."

Konjola is sold in East Liverpool, O., at Carnahan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Brooklyn Staging Real Come-back As Movie Colony

NEW YORK—Brooklyn is coming back into its own as a movie colony. Long before Hollywood was heard of, they were "shooting pictures" in the Borough of Churches.

However, as the industry progressed fewer and fewer pictures were produced in Brooklyn. Eventually they were given up entirely.

But, today there is plenty of activity in the ancient Vitaphone studio. The dingy studio is being worked to the limit of its capacities. Warner Brothers have taken it over and are planning to film all of the Vitaphone short subjects there.

The Ministry of Health of England is to be asked to favor the lowering of the age limit for pensions for blind persons, now set at 60.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immediate effective result. Taken nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.
